

Ola Rollén Named Geospatial Business Leader of the Year

Ola Rollén, president and CEO of Hexagon, has been named 2015's Geospatial Business Leader of the Year. The honor will be presented May 25 during the Geospatial World Forum at World Trade Centre, Rotterdam.

The jury of renowned professionals representing industry, academia, government and multilateral organizations acknowledged Rollén's extraordinary leadership and stewardship in integrating several companies under Hexagon AB that have successfully transformed and aligned with emerging business models. While working towards transformation, his vision has helped various businesses in the company to reduce operational costs and maintain growing profits. Rollén's knowledge and farsightedness have helped Hexagon shape and drive the global geospatial industry through its comprehensive geospatial technology portfolio and end-to-end solutions.

"Ola's instinct to recognize the connectivity between geospatial information, metrology and 3D reality capture has expanded horizons and the scope of the geospatial market worldwide. The past year was a landmark year for Ola, and the world geospatial business community recognizes his vision and contributions. It has been a great honor to witness the advancements he has helped Hexagon bring to the geospatial industry," said Sanjay Kumar, CEO, Geospatial Media and Communications.

"More and more industries are requiring the kind of technologies Hexagon provides to leverage geospatial data and make sense of our dynamically changing world. With decades of experience, new approaches to old problems and product innovations, we're meeting these changes head-on. It is an honor to be named Geospatial Business Leader of 2015, and I look forward to what lies ahead," said Rollén.
